DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Debrodt et al (4,849,085).

Debrodt et al disclose an anode made of a frame or support and a porous substrate connected to the frame or support and in which an electrochemically active substances are dispersed. The porous substrate is made of titanium. See abstract. The substrate is disclosed to be 0.2 to 1 mm thick and the porosity is between 20 to 60 vol. % and in particular 30 to 50 vol. %. The substrate can be impregnated with solutions or suspensions which contain electrochemically active substances such as beta manganese dioxide. See col. 3, lines 3-16.

Debrodt et al does not teach the titanium being a thickness of 3 mm or more.

The subject matter as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the instant invention was made because even though the prior art of Debrodt et al does not teach the thickness of 3 mm or more, one having ordinary skill in the art would recognize that if a frame or support is being used, that the thickness of the substrate would be thinner and that if the substrate is being used as a stand alone structure, that it would be within the ability of one having ordinary skill in the art to make the substrate thicker so that the structure does not need an external support mechanism. Since the prior art of Debrodt et al shows a porous structure having the same electrochemically active material being impregnated into the porous structure and at the same time has the same porosity, it would have been obvious to make the substrate thicker to make the anode a stand alone anode, so that no support or frame would be needed.

Therefore, the prior art of Debrodt et al renders the applicant's instant invention as obvious for the reasons cited above.

It is requested that applicant number the claim in this application that was examined and cancel the claim that was discussed in a telephone interview on August 18, 2004.
